

Floyd's force is believed to be about 7,000. It was held in camp that Schenck's and Gano's brigades would be thrown across the river above and below Floyd, and thus catch him. The loss of telegraph communication was occasioned by the alarm of a frightened telegraph operator, who, when the firing opened, sent a hasty dispatch to Clarkburgh, announcing a battle, and then commenced to move his office up the Gauley. He was two or three miles up the river when he was overtaken by orders from Rosecranz to return, and while returning his wagon was driven over a precipice, and the apparatus destroyed.

Gen. Floyd's demonstration was rather agreeable to Gen. Rosecranz than otherwise. He was certain that he could hold his own and expected to bag his assailants. Col. Sedgwick of the 2d Kentucky Regiment was reported wounded in the knee, by a splinter of shell.

MARYSVILLE, Nov. 4.

A messenger this evening reports that Gen. Wilson took Prestonburgh on Saturday morning without resistance. Williams fell back six miles where he was expected to make a stand.

A citizen of this place, from Gauley bridge says that Floyd had cut a road around the hill where Gen. Rosecranz was encamped, and was shelling his camp.

Gen. Rosecranz was returning the fire and had silenced both batteries. He had sent a force up a new made road to attack Floyd in the rear, and would have him completely surrounded. None of our men had been killed when he left.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.

Owing to the rise of water in the Potomac a number of the bodies of the soldiers drowned at Ball's Bluff have floated hitherward. In addition to the five mentioned yesterday as having been recovered at Chain Bridge, thirteen have been drawn from the river in the vicinity of Washington and Georgetown and one near Fort Washington, 12 miles from this city. The recovered bodies have been buried.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.

The Washington letter of the Commercial says that the New Jersey brigade marched on Saturday morning.

They will doubtless complete the perfect preparations for preventing the passage of the rebels across the Potomac into Maryland under cover of their batteries.

The same letter says all the regiments of the Potomac have their camp equipage, wagons, ambulances, horses or mules, and other apparatus ready for taking the field at an hour's notice.

The organization of the wagon trains was one of the most difficult tasks, but it has been accomplished.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.

An extract from the Richmond Dispatch of its 25th ult., gives the names of 22 commissioners and officers arrived from Leesburgh.

The whole number captured was 525, including 49 of the 15th Massachusetts regiment, 93 of the 121st New York, 148 of the California and 53 of the 20th Massachusetts.

The Dispatch also says there are now nearly 200 Yankees in Richmond, and the sooner hundreds are sent South the better. We are like the man who got an elephant in a lottery, and don't know what to do with it.

The above is contained in a Baltimore news sheet.

LEAVENWORTH, Nov. 3.

A battalion of the Kansas 2d Regiment was collected to go to the relief of Maj. Josephs, but it was not needed. This Regiment is being reorganized.

HEADQUARTERS, CAMP LYON,

Springfield, Oct. 3.

The following is a special dispatch to the St. Louis Republic:

A good deal of excitement has prevailed in camp for some days past respecting the report of Gen. Fremont's supercilious, but Washington advises at headquarters mention nothing of the kind. Gen. Fremont's removal would cause instant excitement, and no little trouble in camp.

A number of officers declare that they will resign in that event, or insist upon creating him dictator of the south west, independent of the Administration, which is bitterly denounced in camp for its vacillating and injudicious policy respecting this Department.

The list of the rebels killed in the battle of last Friday now numbers 127. No intelligence has been received of Gen. Johnson's assumption of the command of the rebel forces in Missouri. The cause of the canonading in the direction of Springfield is still unknown.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 1.

A special dispatch to the St. Louis Republic:

Our scouts bring us this morning definite information that Gen. Price has left St. Louis, and has moved via Neosho towards Caprille, Barry County. Opinions differ as to whether he will march North from that point on Springfield, or continue his retreat into Arkansas.

A body of Rebel cavalry was seen 25 miles south of here. They were doubtless a reconnoitering party. Gen. Pope and McKinstry should be here to-day. Gen. Hunter is on the Pointe de Terre, ten miles south of the Osage, waiting for rations.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 4.

Gen. Prentiss has broken up a rebel camp in Boone County. Some losses reported on both sides, but no particulars have been received.

In the absence of other transportation Fremont is having provisions forwarded from Tippecanoe on pack mules.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.

Six rifled canon left to-day for Washington, for Gen. Sickles' brigade. Their range is said to be 3-4 miles.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.

The Herald's Washington dispatch says of final dispatches have been received at the War Department from Gen. Rosecranz announcing that Floyd had made an attack upon him but that he had repulsed Floyd with great loss, also that one of Rosecranz officers with a large force had got to the rear of Floyd's forces and that the capture of the rebel chief with his army was almost certain.

Gen. McClellan has been occupied in ascertaining the strength, condition, and disposition of the army of the United States and systematizing matters so that the board of the management of Military affairs may be safely confided to the Adjutant General's Office and afford Gen. McClellan opportunity to devote his attention especially to the army of the Potomac. Nine bodies of the soldiers drowned at Ball's Bluff were picked up to day at Georgetown and Long Bridge, most of them were buried upon Arlington Island opposite Georgetown.

The Tribune's despatch says that one of the officers of the Resolute report that seven of our soldiers were injured by a shell from the rebel battery at Shipping Point.

The provost marshal at Alexandria has been ordered to suspend the exercise of civil functions which he recently performed and dismissed all civil cases of which he has taken cognizance.

The Marylanders in the government service are allowed to go home to vote on Wednesday. The World's despatch says the water is subsiding to-night, and the bridge will probably be passable to-morrow notwithstanding the late terrible rains, the roads in Virginia, are found to be in an excellent condition. Government stores lying in the ware houses on the wharves here suffered a good deal from being submerged. The largest review of infantry that has ever taken place in the army is to be held on Wednesday.
